

A photograph of a naval aviator in a flight suit and helmet, working on the fuselage of an aircraft. The scene is set during sunset, with a warm, orange glow in the sky. The aviator is leaning over the aircraft, and the lighting highlights the textures of the flight suit and the metallic surfaces of the plane. The overall mood is one of focused activity and dedication.

Anymouse:

The willingness of naval aviators to share their experience and stories in Approach, whether good or bad, created a safety culture unique throughout aviation.